Purpose of the Policy

The purpose of this policy is to outline the acceptable use of information systems and computing equipment at RCDHU. These rules are in place to protect the employee and the organization. Inappropriate use exposes the organization to risks including malware attacks, compromise of network systems and services, loss of confidential information, and legal issues.

Scope of the Policy

This policy applies to all devices, employees, students, board members and contractors of the organization. Those with access to computing devices or information systems of the organization shall comply with this policy as it applies to their job duties.

Definitions

Protected Information is information that is highly sensitive and that must be safeguarded in accordance with legislative or regulatory requirements. Protected Information is often subject to privacy breach notification laws, and the loss of this information could have severe consequences for the organization. Examples include Protected Health Information, Payment Card Information and most forms of Personally Identifiable Information (PII), also called Personal Information in some areas.

PII (Personally Identifiable Information) is any information about an individual maintained by an agency, including (1) any information that can be used to distinguish or trace an individual's identity, such as name, social insurance number, date and place of birth, mother's maiden name and (2) any other information that is linked or linkable to an individual, such as medical, educational, financial, and employment information.

Confidential Information is information owned by the organization or entrusted to the organization that is not intended for sharing with the public. Security protections must be applied to this information to safeguard its confidentiality, integrity and availability.

Responsibility for Policy Implementation

The RCDHU Privacy Officer or other authorized/designated representative(s) shall be responsible for ensuring implementation of all items listed in the Policy Requirements section. Responsibility for the creation and implementation of specific procedures may be assigned to internal staff or contractors as appropriate.

Policy Requirements

General

Computer devices, networks, electronic information systems, and access to information is provided to meet the mission, goals and objectives of RCDHU. These resources are the property of the organization and must be managed responsibly to maintain the confidentiality, integrity and availability of the organization's information assets.

You must not attempt to circumvent or tamper with IT and information security measures. In an effort to protect our resources, the organization may monitor and log IT equipment usage including all computer and wireless communication device activity. Accordingly, you should not have any expectation of privacy regarding your use of the organization's IT equipment.

Email and the Internet are provided to workers for business use. While not intended to be unduly restrictive, you should be aware that the organization has the right and ability to monitor and restrict usage.

Email and Internet Use

Personal use of email is not permitted on corporate devices (cell phones/laptops, etc.) Opening personal email on a work computer or cellular device can have an impact on our systems. Many viruses start with workers opening a personal email or clicking on a link. You are responsible for ensuring that the material you open on your work devices is appropriate and does not cause harm to the organization.

Internet browsing is permitted if:

- 1) The content is appropriate.
- 2) Activity is in alignment with all laws and our values, and such use will not cause harm to the organization.
- 3) Time spent is reasonable and limited and does not interfere with day-today responsibilities.

Inappropriate use of IT systems, including usage that interferes with business processes, causes harm to the organization or puts a strain on its resources is unacceptable.

Some examples of inappropriate use of our IT systems include:

1. Pictures, jokes, chain letters or distribution of any content that may conflict with our values.
2. Displaying, generating or passing on material (in text, pictures, or any other form) which may be regarded as offensive on the basis of any prohibited ground of discrimination under the Canadian Human Rights Act.
3. Downloading, distribution or use of computer games, or accessing websites for the purpose of playing computer games.
4. Downloading non-business-related attachments from the Internet, email or webmail.
5. Storing or distribution of files that are not business-related (i.e., documents, pictures and music).
6. Downloading of software, or otherwise obtaining and running unauthorized software.
7. Accessing websites that involve gambling, personal share trading, pornography, or conducting any illegal or unethical activity.
8. Watching streaming content such as movies, sports, etc.
9. Listening to streaming services such as Spotify.

What should you do if you receive an inappropriate email?

- Delete the message immediately.
- In a separate email (so as not to reply or forward the inappropriate message), send a new message to the sender advising them that this type of message is inappropriate at work, and advise the sender not to send this type of material to you at work again.

Devices and practices

1. Only company issued devices (e.g., laptops) are to be used for work purposes. Personal laptops are not to be used.
2. Personal Cell phones should never be connected to the Wi-Fi networks. Also, they are not to be charged on laptop hub or laptop outlets. Instead, they are to be charged only in a wall outlet.
3. Do not save items to your C: drive as this is the primary area of attack from malware. Save everything on your M or H drive and this will also ensure nightly back up of all your materials.
4. Adding work email to your personal cell phone or other personal device is prohibited.
5. USB's are not permitted unless obtained/cleared from IT. USB devices are to be encrypted.

Online File Sharing, Backup and Synchronization Services

Online file sharing, backup and synchronization services, such as Dropbox, Google Drive, OneDrive, etc. are very convenient ways to store and share files online but increase the risk that Confidential Information or Protected Information will be inappropriately shared. The following controls must be followed:

Protecting the Organization from Cyber Threats

Phishing and “social engineering” attacks: Sooner or later you will be the target of an attempt to trick you into disclosing Protected Information or Confidential Information or installing malicious software on organization systems. Be aware that social engineers often conduct extensive research in preparation for their attacks and may present you with names, events, or other information that you would not expect to be known to anyone outside your organization. Be aware of the following considerations:

1. Exercise caution with email attachments and links in email messages. If the message is unexpected or if you have any doubt about whether it is genuine, contact the sender. Do not reply to the email. Contact the sender using contact information you have previously recorded.
2. Be suspicious if anyone asks you for a password, account information, or other confidential information. Phishing email messages can be made to look exactly like legitimate messages you have received in the past.
3. Never send Protected Information or Confidential Information, enter passwords, or provide account information over an insecure connection. A secure connection will always start with https:// in the browser address bar.
4. Do not click on banner ads or the ads along the top, sides, or bottoms of web pages. These ads are designed to be tempting, but some may link to malicious websites.
5. Understand that you will be targeted by cyber-criminals and that they want to steal confidential information from all businesses, both large and small. Be constantly vigilant.
